DDI 2012

3rd International Workshop on Regulatory Requirements and Current Scientific Aspects on the Preclinical and Clinical Investigation of Drug-Drug Interactions

May 06th to 08th, 2012
Marbach Castle, Germany

FDA Draft Guideline on Drug Interactions available!

Final Announcement

MISSION STATEMENT

The overall objective of the International Marbach Castle DDI Workshop series is to improve and disseminate the scientific knowledge about drug-drug interactions (incl. food-drug and herb-drug interactions), to foster their proper preclinical and clinical investigation and communication, thereby improving the safe use of drugs in the light of ageing populations, complex patients with various co-morbidities and increasing poly-pharmacotherapy.

BACKGROUND, SCOPE AND AIM

In May/June 2010 the 1st International Workshop on Regulatory Requirements and Current Scientific Aspects on the Preclinical and Clinical Investigation of Drug-Drug Interactions was held based on the initiative of a group of international scientists and experts in the field from academia and industry. The event was triggered by the notion that the area of drug-drug interactions (DDIs) is getting increasingly important and complex in view of continuously emerging new therapies, complex treatment algorithms for many widespread disease states and ageing populations in the industrialized countries. These factors converge into a frequently employed poly-pharmacotherapy with increasing risk for growing incidences of clinically significant DDIs. Therefore, the meticulous investigation, informative labeling, and early recognition of DDIs represent substantial challenges for the pharmaceutical industry and regulatory bodies in the development, approval and post-marketing surveillance of new medicines. Failures in the early recognition, mechanistic elucidation (understanding) and proper management of DDIs, in turn, have resulted in numerous drug withdrawals from the market in the past and continue to result in a significant health burden to patients, rendering many DDIs serious public safety concerns.

Today, DDIs can be addressed in a more targeted and evidence-based fashion, because considerable progress has been made in the understanding of the underlying mechanisms of DDIs and the subsequent development of methodologies for the investigation of DDI susceptibility, and the extrapolation of outcomes of particular DDIs to other drug combinations. However, apart from metabolism based DDI, transporter based DDIs as well as tools extrapolating in vitro results to predict clinical outcomes in vivo (IVIVE) have gained more importance over the recent years.

Furthermore, pharmacodynamic DDIs have gained increasing interest given the steady increase in drug combination in clinical development.

The 2010 Workshop combined a regulatory update on the investigation of DDIs from the European Rapporteur perspective (MPA, Sweden) along with a scientific update focusing on the investigation of metabolism- and transporter-based DDIs. The 2011 workshop focused on large molecule DDIs, non-metabolic DDIs affecting drug absorption as well as complex DDIs in selected therapeutic areas such as oncology, cardiovascular disorders, as well as immunosuppressant and anti-infective therapies. Around 70 experts (maximum capacity of the venue) from pharmaceutical industry, contract research organizations and drug regulatory agencies from more than 10 European countries and the United States participated in each of the two events. Based on the detailed feedback received from the expert audience on additional areas of interest requiring future consideration, the structure and content of this Workshop were designed. The topics of the 3rd International DDI Workshop meeting will be covered by distinguished international scientists and experts from academia, pharmaceutical companies, contract research organizations, consultancies and regulators. The program will provide a unique opportunity for scientific exchange and networking across company and organizational borders, and to learning about the current state-of-the-art in the investigation of DDIs.
